GOVERNOR SMITH AND SPEAKER KELLY.

The Evening Wisconsin of Thursday of this week, editorially says that Speaker Kelly has been mentioned by several State papers as a suitable person for the Republican nomination for Governor next fall. It is a little too early in the season to make speculations as to what shall be done in the way of making nominations next fall, but it occurs to us that nineteen out of every twenty Republicans in Wisconsin will be heartily in favor of the re-nomination of Governor Smith, should he allow his name to be used in the convention. There are several reasons why he should again be elected to that office. Everybody remembers that in 1877, when it was expected that the Democrats would win in the contest, Governor Smith fought the battle almost single-handed and alone. Of course the Fond du Lac platform was disgustingly soft to a great many Democrats, and that helped our ticket quite considerably. But there was too much apathy on the part of the Republicans and the Republican press. They did not seem to have the abiding faith that the Republican State ticket could be elected, and therefore there was less hard work done two years ago than for several years previous. But the character of our ticket was unexceptionable, and Governor Smith having great personal influence, and possessing a reputation for solid integrity second to no man in Wisconsin, he carried the election. In view of these facts, and the further fact that his administration has been wise and economical, and challenges the respect of all men, we believe the Republican party of the State will ask for his re-nomination.

Mr. Speaker Kelly is one of the growing men of Wisconsin. He would honor the gubernatorial chair, or a seat in Congress as he does the position he now holds, but he concurs in the opinion of the Evening Wisconsin that he should be held in reserve for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Sixth District in 1880; and we believe as that paper says, "had he been nominated for Congress last fall, as the Wisconsin suggested, and the proper organization had in the district, he would have been elected; and Bouck would have a long adieu to Congressional halls on the 4th of March next." The Republicans in that district seem to be demoralized. It is a Republican district, and that they permit such a man as Gabe Bouck to beat the party at two successive Congressional elections is not only humiliating but a political disgrace. The nomination of Mr. Speaker Kelly, and even ordinary industry and moderate shrewdness on the part of the Republicans, will redeem the District.

THE TEXT BOOK REPORT.

The Text Book Commissioners have presented their report to the Senate, and on Thursday it was referred to the Committee on Education. Some two weeks ago the Gazette published the main features of the report and, and also a brief synopsis of the bill which the Commissioners prepared to present with the report. The Commissioners have performed their work very thoroughly, and have embraced in their report much valuable historical and statistical information regarding the school book legislation in other States. They held seven important meetings, and investigated and pretty thoroughly considered these six points: (1) the proposed legislation regarding school books; (2) the character of the existing statutes on the subject in other States; (3) the advisability of State uniformity; (4) the best mode of lessening the cost of text books; (5) the number of text books which should be used; and (6) the question of reform in English orthography.

The Commissioners do not ask absolute uniformity, except in districts and towns, but suggest that uniformity should be encouraged as much as possible without arbitrary enforcement. The aim of the bill which they have reported is "to ensure to the people the advantages which belong to wholesale purchase; to introduce competition among book publishers who desire to compete for the furnishing of text books to the people of the State; and to afford home capital and home talent an opportunity to enter the contest on equal terms with outside publishers and authors." The bill which the Commissioners have prepared, provides that every district shall on or before a specified time, adopt a list of books for use in the schools in each district, and send such list together with an estimate of the number wanted for the term of three years, to these Commissioners. The Commissioners will then aggregate the estimates, and then advertise for proposals to furnish the State the number and kind of books specified. The contract will be let to the lowest responsible bidder. The books so furnished by the contractor shall be distributed and kept for sale by a county agent, who is to receive a small commission on the sales. The books can be sold to private individuals as well as to districts. The bill also provides that any district which shall fail to comply with all the provisions of the law, shall forfeit its share of the income of the school fund. Among the several very excellent provisions of the bill is one which reduces the number of books now in use. For instance, where there are now six readers, only four will be adopted, and so on through the entire list.

The subject which occupies a large space of the Commissioners' report, and one which seems to have been very thoroughly studied, is that of orthography. To many it may seem idle to spend very much time and trouble in the attempt to bring about a reform in spelling. Hundreds of efforts have been made in that direction, and all have failed. The people are exceedingly slow in making any change in the present

A TORNADO.

The Town of Iuka, Miss., Visited with a Terrible Tornado—Several People Killed.
CINCINNATI, Jan. 30.—A Commercial special gives the particulars of a tornado at Iuka, Miss., this afternoon. The storm came from the southwest, striking the portion of the town situated on the hill, occupied mostly by colored people. One colored woman and five children were killed outright, and two of the latter were found a quarter of a mile from their home. Eight other colored people were wounded, one of whom has since died. Four houses and one church were blown down. The tornado lasted but a few moments, and its track was not over 200 yards wide.

CARPENTER.

Senator-Elect Carpenter's Reception at the Capital Last Evening.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—Senator-elect Carpenter arrived here this evening, and was met at the depot by a delegation of the citizens formerly from Wisconsin, headed by General Paine, Commissioner of Patents. A salute of seventeen guns was fired as a welcome, and the progress of the procession up Avenue was illuminated by fireworks and calcium lights. Mr. Carpenter was conducted to Willard's Hotel, where he was serenaded by the Marine band, and formally welcomed by enthusiastic speeches by General Paine and Mr. Clapp, editor of the Washington Republican.

Mr. Carpenter responded in a half-hour speech from the balcony of the hotel around which were gathered an audience of at least 2,000 persons. He declared his faith in the Republican party, to which he believed was committed the destiny of the nation, and said that his election was not much a personal triumph of his own as a triumph of Republican principles, and a verdict upon his defeat four years ago, which was accomplished by a violation of the party organization. The assemblage was very enthusiastic, and their cheers testified to Mr. Carpenter's popularity. Several allusions were made to General Grant by him and the other speakers, and were applauded vociferously. Mr. Carpenter announcing himself a Grant man. After the speaking Mr. Carpenter held a reception at the hotel, receiving congratulations from hundreds of people. It was a remarkable incident that none of the Wisconsin Congressional delegation were present, and it is said, in explanation, that the committee on arrangements neglected to notify them. Mrs. Senator Cameron, however, was present to represent her husband, who is South with the Senate Investigating Committee. Mr. Carpenter's wife and son came with him, and with his daughter, who is spending the winter here, observed his welcome with other spectators.

THE HEATHEN.

Opinion of the Pacific Senators Before the Senate.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The bill restricting Chinese immigration was received from the House and laid before the Senate this afternoon. On Mr. Sargent's motion, it was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee. Mr. Sargent accompanied his motion with remarks specially inviting attention to it, and expressing the hope that it be reported back promptly, the committee having had a similar bill before them during the whole of the present Congress. If the committee does not report the bill back to the Senate next week Mr. Sargent will move to discharge the committee from its further consideration, and is confident that it will obtain a majority vote in the Senate whether the committee recommends its passage or not. All the other Pacific coast Senators share this confidence, but will use their utmost exertions to make its passage absolutely certain.

"SYLPH."

Another Chapter in the McDonald Divorce Case—The Arrest of Mc. and "Sylph."

Oshkosh, Wis., January 30.—The second act in the drama of farce now being enacted at Green Lake took place this afternoon. Deputy United States Marshal Simpson arrived here last night, and this morning was joined by two men from Milwaukee. They proceeded by the morning train to Ripon and Green Lake, where with a large posse, they proceeded to Sunnyside, the residence of General McDonald, and arrested McDonald, Mrs. La Mothe, otherwise "Sylph," and W. F. Thompson, McDonald's attorney. The officers had warrants for resisting a United States officer, and the prisoners were taken to Milwaukee on the afternoon train. In the meantime the Marshal's posse is in possession of the stock and personal property on the McDonald farm.

PISCICULTURE.

The Work at the Fish Hatchery at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin—Fish by the Millions—Salmon Trout Eggs for Kentucky.

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., Jan. 30.—The fish hatchery of the Hon. N. K. Fairbank, State Fish Commissioner of Illinois, located here, is in successful operation. There have been received this season 365,000 California salmon eggs, which reached here Oct. 12, and were successfully hatched, being now young fish nearly two inches in length, and ready to be turned loose into the streams. Of this number 265,000 are the private property of Mr. Fairbank, and will be mostly turned into Lake Geneva. The remaining 100,000 belong to Illinois, and will be distributed to various points in that State. These eggs were contributed by the General Government through the United States Fish Commission. There were recently received here 500,000 Mackinaw trout eggs from Lake Michigan, which are already hatching, and promise well. About 200,000 brook trout and a large quantity of white fish will soon arrive. During the establishment of this hatchery house the enterprise of fish culture has been very successfully carried on by Mr. Fairbank, upward of 1,000,000 of young fish having been hatched and turned into the lake, as follows: In 1875, Oswego bass to the number of 17,000; in 1876, 250,000 salmon trout, 112,000 white fish, 50,000 brook trout, 1,500,000 walleyed pike, 20,000 California salmon; in '77, 750,000 salmon trout, 100,000 white fish, 4,500,000 walleyed pike, 100,000 California salmon, 108,000 brook trout; in 1878, 175,000 California salmon, 250,000 salmon trout, 300,000 trout. The Wisconsin State Fish Commission deposited here in 1878, 200,000 white fish.

YELLOW FEVER.

Report of the Board of Experts to the Congressional Committee.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The Board of Experts for investigating the yellow fever epidemic of 1878, has submitted a long report to the joint Congressional committee. The report recommends that the necessary steps be taken by Congress to secure the co-operation of the Spanish and other foreign governments, through an international commission or otherwise, in an earnest effort to ascertain the cause, or cause, or to lessen the chances of transporting the poison to the United States or other countries. Yellow fever should be dealt with as an enemy which imperils life and cripples commerce and industry. The outline of the system of quarantine heretofore published, is presented, the object of which is to afford the greatest attainable degree of protection against the introduction and spread of infectious and epidemic diseases, and at the same time inflict only the minimum of injury and inconvenience on commerce. The carrying into effect of an efficient system of quarantine, contemplates a well organized health department. The report takes the ground that yellow fever is an import disease, and as the effluvia which emanates from the bodies of the dead may be associated with infection, it is recommended that the bodies of persons who die of yellow fever be promptly buried, and that the assembling of persons at the funerals be discouraged. With the exception of Dr. Louis A. Falligant, the Board voted for the report unanimously.

STATE LEGISLATURE.

A Proposition for a State Board of Emigration.

And a Bill to Encourage the Propagation of Fish.

The Assembly Whittled Away the Time on a Contested Election Case.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Special to the Gazette.
MADISON, Jan. 31.—In the Senate bills were introduced to establish a State Board of Emigration.

To amend the Revised Statutes, relative to garnishee proceedings, religious societies, relating to evidence.

A bill was passed to encourage artificial propagation of fish in Wisconsin.

In the Assembly, the morning was used up in the discussion of the case of Michael J. Egan, Democratic contestant, against William W. Johnson, Republican, as member from Eleventh District of Milwaukee county. The Committee on Privileges and Elections had decided for Johnson, and that gentleman will no doubt retain his seat.

THE OFFICES.

Conkling Losing Ground.—The President will endeavor to have his appointments confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The New York appointments have been a subject of much quiet canvassing to-day in the Senate, and it is evident that the Administration has at last decided to use every available means to secure the confirmation of its appointments. Secretary Sherman has been at work all day on his replication to Arthur's plea. He will take the ground that the removal was based on the examination made of the New York custom-house last summer, and that his offer of a foreign appointment to Arthur was made to his having seen the report of this last examination. The Secretary's replication will be sharp and severe, and his friends hope that it will destroy the effect of Arthur's plea. It is evident that the longer the vote can be postponed, the more votes there will be given for confirmation, and that the great majority of the Senate, which at first stood by Conkling, is growing small by degrees. The Senate will go into executive session at half-past 1 o'clock to-morrow afternoon, when Secretary Sherman's replication will be presented, and an attempt made by the friends of the Administration to secure delay by moving that it be printed, and made the order of the day in executive session on Monday. Senator Conkling will doubtless oppose this or any other delay, and endeavor to have a vote before adjournment.

FORGER ARRESTED.

Special to Milwaukee Sentinel.
WATERTOWN, Jan. 30.—Deputy Sheriff Cunningham arrested Star M. Cone, a notorious character, for many years a resident of Watertown, at Westboro, Taylor county, this State, (on Monday. Officers have been on the scent of Cone for some time, but he has bragged that no officers of Jefferson county dare arrest him. However, he is now in jail at Watertown awaiting his examination before Justice Jaishin on the charge of forgery. His bail is fixed at $400. He will be examined Feb. 8.

FOREIGN.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—A dispatch from Berlin represents that no confidence is felt there in President Grevy's competency to maintain his authority.

Proposed Division of Texas.

A Washington telegram to the New Orleans Times, under the date of the 23d instant, says: "It is quietly reported that Senator Bayard, who went to Texas as a member of the Senatorial escort with the body of the late Representative Schleicher, will inquire into the feelings of the people concerning the division of Texas into two States—North and South Texas—which would give the Senate two more members, and the Democratic party two more in their majority. The matter is kept very quiet, but that there is such a movement on foot is most reliably stated. If the feeling is in its favor, the movement looking to the subdivision of the State will commence this winter. San Antonio is spoken of as the contemplated capital of South Texas if such a State is made."

General Grant and Elihu Washburne. Interview with Charles A. Washburn in Philadelphia Press.

"You have no personal knowledge, I suppose, of Elihu's early relations with President Grant at Galena?"
"No; about all I know about it I have heard from other persons."
"Did you ever hear the story that Elihu lent General Grant money to equip himself for the war?"
"I don't know much about their financial relations. A prominent man in Galena told me this: 'That Grant was called forward to preside at a soldiers' meeting, and he told Elihu, as his Congressman, that he thought it was his duty to go into the army. Elihu gave him a letter to Governor Yates, recommending him as an ex-officer of the regular army, who had graduated at West Point, and who ought to have a regiment. My informant said that Yates put Grant in the Adjutant's office, and set him to copying. After while Grant said to the Governor: 'You can get a man to do this work at $1 a day, and it is this all you have to give me. I shall go back to Galena.' The day following his arrival in Galena I am told that a gentleman saw Grant between daylight and sunrise walking with Elihu Washburne down to the railroad depot. The train which leaves Danville, going south, comes through Galena very early in the morning. My brother Elihu was carrying Grant's carpet-bag, and going to the station with me. This gentleman says he saw them together, and says that Elihu, as soon as Grant came back from Springfield, told him to return again instantly with a more respectable escort, to stay until Yates would give him a regiment. If that is true, it is a rather significant thing. Grant might have become a mere Lieutenant or Captain, and not have pressed his way to the front as soon as he did."

FROM OVER THE BORDER.

HAMILTON, ONT., CANADA.

Many moons have come and gone since my last letter from this far-Lorne land to the Gazette. The crimson flowers and purple fruits of early autumn have changed to the ice-clad trees and snow-capped hills that tell us here of north-easters that chill our bones and favor the reign of Cronchitis. I think, however, in this valley which embosoms Burlington Bay, that the thermometer has reached only 20 degrees as the lowest mark of cold, while at Janesville 26 degrees was the record. So you see in climate it differs very little from Southern Wisconsin, except that we get lake winds from the north-east directly upon us.

I am often asked, "Are the manners and customs very different in Canada from our own in the States?" In most respects an American realizes this to be a "foreign land." For instance, here, they have very decided seasons of trade. The fall trade extends to the Christmas holidays, including them. After that the dry-goods houses look like houses about to go into liquidation, for the goods are all "marked down," the windows are placarded, and a general don't-care-a-tyness seems to prevail among clerks and goods. It is so very absurd as to enquire, solo voce, if so-and-so, a leading merchant, had failed. I supposed his goods were being sold off "regardless," such was the seeming frantic display of advertising to get off the less desirable remains of "the season's" trade. During this off season the fashionables are not out in their glory and long purses are hollow for the opening spring trade, while the short-pursed poor are trying to get as much for a little as they can of the crumbs left over from the holiday trade. The leading dry goods merchants from Hamilton, I find of two at least, have already come to Europe to buy their spring stock of goods. Nearly all dry goods houses go to Europe for a large class of goods. "Marking down" will continue until about March, when the style of advertising changes, the long purses will open and the new goods will flaunt upon the streets and flourish in the drawing rooms. When the season opens the very clerks brighten up, the stores take off the perplexed look, the grey and sombre look of inventorying, and getting off the old stock, and they assure you no such "goods of good value" can be found elsewhere on earth. I think in most American towns the merchant realizes there are people besides the rich or fashionable who want goods just as much out of the fashionable season as during that time, and very sensibly makes very little difference in the general appearance of his house of business, and being truly democratic, he treats his "off season" customer with consideration, at least equal to the length of his purse. In other words, while every season of trade, especially dry-goods and clothing, "must have its day," it is more decided here and really quite disagreeable to seek for anything between seasons.

For amusements, I think Canada would starve for America. Concert troupes, lecturers, etc., are imported or import themselves to this city, and such are the amusements par excellence. Last week Boston and Buffalo contributed to the Hamilton concert patronizers' enjoyment and this evening California has a concert here, while to-morrow and the next evening New York amuses Hamilton. Last Thursday evening Mrs. Scott-Siddons gave one of her inimitable readings to the city. While Mrs. Siddons is an American she is cosmopolitan, as she says, and it is America or the States which call her to this continent. Many times we of this household, had failed to hear Mrs. Siddons, and her entertainment drew us to the hall. And what a loss not to see her, for to me, to see is better than to hear. Her magnificent eyes, her grace of action, and poetry of motion, will dwell as a pleasing picture in my memory for many a day. In the scenes from Twelfth Night which she gave, the changes of expression, voice and attitude, to represent Viola, Orsino, Olivia, the Clown, &c., were almost marvelous in the swiftness of the changes. "Curfew" she gave finely, and the much hackneyed poem "The Maniac," she gave in costume as a chained inmate of a cell, and her impersonation was fearful, it was mad! We had the pleasure of meeting Mrs. Siddons, and personally she is delightful to meet. In meeting her thus she in no sense shocks your pre-conceived idea of her; she rather adds surely to the first that she is a lovely, graceful, natural woman.

Having read so much in reference to the "ice-bridge" at we took advantage of the sunshine of Friday morning last, and made our way over the forty-five miles lying between this city and Suspension bridge, where the chain of cars on the American side soon brought us within sound of the all-engulfing monster Falls. Sight soon followed sound, for a few moments brought us into the great out-door ice-palace of the spray-king, who rules all the air about the Falls. The best possible description of this ice-palace is found in the photographic views of Niagara, as she sits there white, weird, and triumphant. Every tree and shrub, rock and shore, every stick and twig is covered with frost-work from the spray. Some of it looks like carved marble, some like alabaster, floral designs, and again lovely, lace-like fret work, feasts the eye with ideal beauty. And still the great Falls thunder on, ceaseless like eternity, sweeping along as unwearied as time. Just outside of where the fall of water on the American side strikes the river below, is a formation of ice looking like the three fourths section of a great white cauldron, into which the mighty waters of Niagara before the spray is scattered broadcast. After laying away all the ice pictures we could carry in our memories, we took cars and went down the tunnel of one hundred and sixty-five or seventy feet, to the ice-bridge over the river. After all, it is but a river frozen over, why else should it be the swift current of the river, and not often allow of the occurrence, and the ice is very uneven in its form over the river. Once frozen, the spray which is a constant rainstorm, falls upon it and freezes again and again, so that the ice is very thick. It is said to be fifty feet thick, but who can realize this, when the water money-catchers say it is very solid at all events, and we went out upon it long enough to get a good soaking from the spray. The ice runs up very near the American Fall, and just there where the spray falls thick the ice, with the constant action of top freezing, forms a mound about 50 feet in height. But the ice bridge is not a glittering ice palace, as some have imagined; only the swift river is frozen over thicker and vastly more uneven than rivers usually are, that is all. Upon this, it is told, the Princess and party ascended. If they did they were very near eternity. The guides told us the passage leading out to it, is now closed. But we saw the feat performed of a horse and rider crossing from the Canada side on the ice, and ascending the storehouse mound, the rider taking his good steed quite near the edge of the glassy foundation and bringing him from the height down an icy declivity so steep as to throw him nearly on his haunches. The Marquis of Lorne and the Princess, who were on the Canada side, left that day p.m., but we did not aspire to "hang around" to catch a glimpse of them, and remained on the American side. On the day the Governor-General and party passed through Hamilton on their way to the Falls, we formed a part and parcel of the for-Lorne who went to the station expecting their train would pause long enough to give us a view of the bonny Scotchman, but they passed us in haste and silence—so unlike our democratic people-pleasers that it quite took my breath. They of course were taking a private journey, quite for their own amusement and information, and have a right to shut out the world if they wish. I think, however, it is the intention of the Governor-General to visit the different cities of Canada in the spring, when I suppose Hamilton will have an opportunity to do him honor. It is very quiet here, dull even, but I am not sure that I speak for the people. I think the churches are active, and benevolent societies, well organized, and working, and as much good I being done as in any place of its size in the country. This, too, is useful, for O, the poor who beg, the degraded who drink, the hardened who do all manner of evil, their day is legion.

A severe snow storm prevailed here to-day, which bids fair to ruin the fine sleighing we have enjoyed for about a month. I hope you are not sharing in the discomfort in Wisconsin.

My practice is not one of experiment, but founded on the laws of Nature, with years of experience and evidence to sustain it. I do not fear downy, no tricks, no quackery. We know the cause and the remedy; no guess work, but knowledge gained of years of experience in the treatment of Chronic diseases exclusively; no encouragement without a prospect. Candid in our opinions, reasonable in our charges, claim not to know everything, or cure every body, but to lay claim to reason and common sense. GENERAL GRANT'S BROTHER.

Orville Makes His Appearance in Philadelphia. He Talks About the ex-President—And is Evidently Not Entirely Cured of His Mental Disorder—His Children.

Philadelphia Times: A bearded man, in a heavy ulster and an old slouch hat, walked into Lipton's restaurant, at Sixth and Arch streets, yesterday morning, about 10 o'clock, and inquired for a young man connected with the establishment, who had recently been in the restaurant business in New York. The bearded man said he had just that morning arrived from New York, and, intending to open a two thousand dollar restaurant in San Francisco, was on the lookout for a restaurant. Parties in New York had referred him to the young man in question. He was on his way to Washington, where he had business to transact, prior to his departure for San Francisco. He expressed himself pleased with the looks of the young man and thought he would "do." He talked about immense sums of money. He said he had hundreds of thousands of dollars in the Chicago fire. He was full of plans for making money in San Francisco. Not only was he going to open a restaurant, but he had several hundred thousand dollars invested in a Pacific Slope tannery, another immense sum in a brewery and was in partnership with several parties in other concerns. He said he had made immense sums of money in Washington and lost large sums of money there. He spoke lightly of his losses and proposed to make up for them very shortly. He ordered breakfast and while he ate he talked. He was impatient to get to San Francisco. His partners were waiting for him there. As soon as he got through his business in Washington he would go through his business destination without delay. There would be no end to the money he was going to make. After he got through breakfast he drew out a roll of greenbacks and paid his bill. Then he lighted a cigar and began to smoke vigorously. He was a RATHER GOOD-LOOKING MAN, a strong face, with full beard, and a strong head, a prominent forehead and a rather small body. He had a pair of light overalls, a pair of dark trousers, and a pair of dark shoes. He looked as though he had been walking a good deal in the mud. The hat was rather too small for him and when he put it on it gave him a queer, jaunty look. There was an air of easy assurance about him and he talked with everybody. It was soon whispered among those who heard him that he was insane.

The young man whom he had called to see asked him his name. "Grant, Orville," he replied. "Orville Grant has that name," said some one said. "Yes," said the stranger, "Ulysses is my brother. He is thirteen years older than I am. I'm forty-four and he is fifty-seven."

Persons who were at first disposed to regard this only as an insane man's fancy were suddenly struck with the resemblance he bore to General Grant. There was the same beard, the same strong face and the same head. He left the restaurant shortly afterward and returned in the evening for his supper.

Meantime it turned out to be as he said. He was the ex-President's brother. It will be remembered a few months ago Orville Grant was placed in the insane asylum of Morrisville, New Jersey, having lost his reason, it is said through unlucky investments. A few weeks ago the papers noticed his release, it being believed that

HE HAD REGAINED HIS REASON. Until his appearance in Philadelphia yesterday nothing had been heard of him. His family resided in Elizabeth, New Jersey. When his mind is off of money matters he seems sensible enough. He entered freely into a talk about his brother's prospects for the next Presidency.

"A good many people, Mr. Grant, are opposed to your brother running for a third term."

Mr. Grant gave a shrug of his shoulders and a slight laugh.

"What reason is there in that?" he said. "If a man makes a good President why not elect him so long as the people are pleased with him? Why not keep him in for life? He does right, electing him every four years? If a man has a good clerk, ought he to discharge him simply because he has been with him a certain length of time?"

"Do you think your brother will be nominated for the next Presidency?"

"I can tell more about it after the nominations are made. He doesn't want the office; I know that. I'd like to see him President, though. I want to make some more money. Money is the only thing that seems to take nowadays."

"When is your brother expected home?"

"Next fall; he will arrive by way of San Francisco. He intended to be home sooner but he changed his mind a few weeks ago and thought he'd better stay away awhile longer."

Mr. Grant exhibited two photographs, of a bright little girl, aged about seven years, and the other of a boy of about seventeen. They were his son and daughter, he said. One had the name of an Elizabeth photographer and the other of a Philadelphia gallery. The latter was taken several years ago, he said, when he was in the city with his family. He paid a visit in the forenoon to J. R. Casselberry, of this city, with whom he was associated in the post-rider business, took dinner at his house, and last night took a train for Washington.

Cause and Cure of Snoring. A writer in the Scientific Monthly tells how the habit of snoring is acquired, and—better still—how it may be cured.

"And, first, the cause: The air reaches the lungs through two channels, the nose and the mouth. The two currents meet in the throat below the palate, the one which brings loose and warm air backward and forward, producing the snoring. If the air reaches the lungs, as it should, through the nose, no noise will be made. If it reaches the same through the mouth, the palate will make more noise, since it is not the natural channel, but when it rushes through both these channels then it is that the sound sleeper breathes rest from the pillows of his companions by his hideous noise. The remedy for snoring is to keep the mouth closed; and for this purpose Dr. Wyeth, the writer of the article referred to, has invented an article so cheap that any one can make it, and no snorer should be without it. It consists of a single cap fitting the head snugly, and a piece of soft material fitting the chin. These are connected by elastic webbing, which is connected with the head cap near the ears. This contrivance prevents the jaw from dropping down, and thereby rendering snoring impossible. The great trouble will be to get people to adopt this invention, since the most upright and honest of men and women will rarely confess that they snore, and will be very indignant if accused of it. As a further inducement to the introduction of this contrivance of Dr. Wyeth, it may be added that breathing through the mouth is very detrimental to the health, and that many diseases of the throat or lungs are contracted or aggravated thereby."

Stewart's Body not Found. New York Tribune: The information of the Tribune, derived from the direct sources, warrants it in stating in the most positive terms that the body of the late A. T. Stewart has not been recovered by Mrs. Stewart or Judge Hilton or any of their agents. Late publications to the contrary grew out of exaggerated repetitions of hopes expressed by Mrs. Stewart to her friends in December last that negotiations then pending would result in the return of the body before the end of the year. These hopes were disappointed. The then pending negotiations have been described in The Tribune. The only clue now being followed is the search for "Bull" Kelley, whom Chief Donovan, of Hoboken, and Chief of Detectives, Capt. Kealy, of this city, believe to have been the driver of the wagon in which it is suspected the body was conveyed across the Hoboken ferry to New Jersey. Kelley has never been seen here since the night of the robbery.

Boots and Shoes.

The returns of one of the patentees who collects a royalty on every boot or shoe manufactured by machinery, show that the greatest number of pairs ever turned out in one month were manufactured in September, 1878—four million one hundred and ninety-one thousand seven hundred and seventy-three pairs. For the year, however, the manufacture up to October last was only twenty-three million one hundred and ninety-seven thousand pairs, against twenty-five million two hundred and eighty-five thousand for the same time last year, or a reduction of about eight per cent. The total shipments from the Boston market up to date have been one million two hundred and ninety-five thousand one hundred and forty-six cases this year, against one million four thousand nine hundred and twenty-one cases for the same period last year. This falling off is due in some measure to the increased employment of shoemakers to work by hand in the old-fashioned way. There probably has never been a time when so many of the work were so far in buying boots and shoes as to-day. Scientific American.

Setting the Message.

Years ago when the writer of this was an apprentice boy with another young coddler named Frank Ball, they two being the only hands in the office of the Orleans Republican, there was a President's message came to them to set. It was the production of John Tyler, and was longer than the moral law. Having two copies, each took a part, and set out at early dawn to race it for the day, testing which could set the most type by daylight. Starting out on the voyage was like a ship starting out on the trackless ocean, for from the beginning no one in the message could see the end of a president's message. Without stirring, speaking or stopping, the two boys laid themselves out to the work. With brains fairly reeling as darkness came, they stopped to measure up. They were astonished at the work they had accomplished, but were astonished when, comparing notes, that each had been setting precisely the same part of the message. Poor Ball died a few days later, and the survivor has had little rest for setting a president's message since. —Elinora New York Times.

The Same Old South.

New York Commercial Advertiser (Rep.) Jeff Davis has never pretended to what he does not believe; and the enthusiasm with which he is everywhere received when he makes a public appearance in the South proves that the people who are loudest in their professions of peace admire him for it. Would they thus admire him for what they do not believe? Not at all. Then the South must still believe what it said before the war. But there can be no doubt of that. The legislatures of Virginia and Alabama have said so; and now a "Rebel Brigadier" in the United States Senate has marshaled his yielding Northern colleagues in a manner that strikingly recalls the days before the war, and they come promptly forward to say that the State is superior to the Republic. Senator Edmunds' fair reason was more common for the Southern Democrats, and they have brought their Northern associates to stultify their constituents.

The Graves of a Household.

Yellow Jack left his card here in August and September. In front of one white man's home I noticed half a dozen new mounds, with wreaths and crosses hanging above the headstones. They were the graves of a household. At the door of the desolated home a sad-faced man of fifty, thin, yellow, wrinkled and white-haired, holding by the hand a delicate female child of three years, with golden curls and violet eyes, the living child of that family sleep every night within a few feet of each other, and this is but one of the many instances bearing witness of the great plague in all parts of this section of the State. Truly may the people of scourged Louisiana say: "In the midst of life we are in death." —Louisiana Correspondence Chicago Times.

A Mule that Can Count.

Salt Lake, Utah, Herald. There is a mule, driven on one of the South First street cars, apparently a little more sensible than others. It is generally on the morning shift, and has to make five round trips before the team is changed.

Every day, as the mule comes to the fifth return trip, from the upper end of the line, it begins to whinny a half a block before reaching East Second street, and if the change team does not happen to be waiting, and the driver has to run to the bank corner and return before changing, it will stretch out its neck and whinny again, louder than before, about the same distance or it reaches the place. How that mule keeps track of the fifth trip is more than Gunn has found out.

The Yield of Petroleum.

There are estimated to be 4,500,000 barrels of petroleum in the tank in the oil region of Pennsylvania. The United States can light the world. The yield of this product in this country is seven times greater than all the world besides. Petroleum is found in Japan, Persia, Siberia, France, Italy, and was used by the ancients 3,000 years ago, being spoken of by Herodotus as in use before the Christ era.

The first borings for oil in this country were in 1859. That year the product was 82,000 barrels. From that it has increased until now it amounts to from 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 barrels annually.

To a Connecticut lady who thought it was "real mean" that he should destroy so good a joke as the alleged Saturday Review criticism of his book. Mark Twain wrote:

"That Saturday Review hoax was the only lie (except this one) that I ever told in my life, and with a little heart, I am regretting of it in a delirious and gasping way. Therefore I am, at so very, very bad, after all. There are worse men, indeed there are. You ought to see my brother!"

Eges 40 cents a dozen! Are hence aware that the war ended fifteen years ago, and the Government resumed specie payments on January 1? Farmers should acquaint their poultry with these facts. —Norristown Herald.

"What did you do then?" asked Colonel George, after badgering a witness in the Lowell Railroad case at Salem. "I went to the rescue, like a lawyer for a man's pocketbook," replied the witness, and the rest was enjoyed all around. —Boston Post.

BRIEFLETS.

—Good bye January.
—Temple of Honor night.
—Not very good for fast-driving.
—The indications are that February will commence to-morrow.
—Dr. Robinson is among those reported as being on the sick list.
—It costs only a nickel to give her a bright chromo for a Valentine's present.
—Richard Brown has lost about $100, by having one of his horses curl up and die.
—Alderman Vankirk is kept at home by a bad cold, but hopes to be out again to-morrow.
—Mrs. Sam Bridge, of Milwaukee is thinking of soon delivering a lecture in this city.
—Charlie Potter, who has been badly used up with a sore throat for a few days is on the gain.
—Everybody should remember Moody's social and entertainment at the Opera House, Monday night.
—The stone walls of the basement of Henry Doty's new building on Main street are being pushed right along.
—A little early for boating but Burt Heimstreet is making ready to repaint and refit his for the coming season.
—The revival meetings at the First Methodist church are now attended on the average, by two hundred people.
—Marshall Keating had a restless night, and his condition is none the better this morning, though he is holding his own.
—At the ladies' gathering at All Souls church to-morrow afternoon, Horace McElroy, Esq., will give another paper on Thackeray.
—The bill boards are adorned with flaming paper for Lew Benedict's Troubadour Minstrels, who will be at the Opera House next Wednesday evening.
—Mr. Fred Jackson and wife left this morning for Portland, Oregon. Fred has a mail contract out there and proposes to see to the route himself. May health and prosperity keep with him.
—The Circuit Court to-day is considering the case of Conger vs. Mills, a foreclosure suit, brought here from Walworth county. The taking up of the case has been delayed several days owing to absent witnesses, but the court could wait no longer, and this morning it was opened. It will take most of to-morrow.
—A Monroe man named Mansfield came to this city the other day, and has not yet returned home, owing to the fact that he has met with a financial mishap. He thinks some light-fingers must have been playing hide and go seek in his pockets, for he has missed about $5 in money, a pair of mittens, and a roll of fine-cut. He is still on the hunt after the fellow who went through him.
—Justice Balch is this afternoon listening to the case of the State vs. Frank Fox and Levi Mills, in which the latter are charged with having driven to death one of Yeager & McKee's livery horses. A jury has been chosen, consisting of J. W. Nash, R. S. Burdick, John Davis, L. D. Jerome, Mr. Hayser, and Mr. Kaufman. The case will not probably be concluded before to-morrow.
—Last evening as two ladies were walking along West Milwaukee street, three young boys ran against them causing one of the ladies to tumble down on the sidewalk. A gentleman who happened to be passing by collared one of the young fellows, and brought him to a sufficient realization of the proprieties of the time and place to gather himself up, and start for home, and his companions did likewise.
—Mrs. Kate Lynch, of Beloit, who has been spending a three weeks' vacation at home, is back again to her old quarters in jail, having been sent up for ninety days for being drunk and acting very naughty besides. She not only went from saloon to saloon begging drinks, but was found entertaining three tramps in an old building. Kate denied the charges, but it was of no avail. The Justice thought she hadn't done exactly right, and should be punished.
—There was a lively runaway yesterday afternoon just beyond Captain Miles' place Two of Evansville's residents, named Warner and Brown, were driving along in a buggy, when the axle broke. The bobtailed mare speedily took herself out of the way, and managed to take two of the wheels with her, leaving the other two spinning around in close proximity to the heads of the two passengers who were spilled out, and whose faces were badly scratched up by the kindling wood into which the buggy box had been converted.

THE WEATHER.

The thermometer at 7 o'clock this morning stood at 34 degrees above and at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 32 degrees above. One year ago to-day at corresponding hours the thermometer stood at 34 and 32 degrees above.

DOINGS OF THE GUARDS.

As stated several days ago in the Gazette, Captain T. T. Croft, of the Janesville Guards, has concluded to take off the shoulder-straps, sheathe his sword, and abandon all ambitions for gore. At a special meeting of the Guards last evening Captain Croft formally announced his intention, and expressed the desire that the company should present some name to be forwarded at once as his successor. Lieutenant M. A. Newman, who by virtue of rank was entitled to the Captaincy, magnanimously moved that the name of H. A. Smith be presented to the Governor, with the request that he be commissioned. This was carried with enthusiasm. Remarks were made expressive of regret that Captain Croft should deem it advisable to resign, and he was unanimously and heartily made an honorary life member of the company.

Without doubt the Governor will commission H. A. Smith as Captain, and he will accept the honor, coming as it does with this enthusiastic request of the company. As First Lieutenant of the Guards, which position he lately resigned, he showed himself a superior drillmaster and organizer, and he having had a varied and prolonged experience in the practical activities of military life, a better choice could not be made. Lieutenant Newman's generous surrender of his claims for that position has more than doubled the Company's enthusiastic regard for him, which was great before. He too is a wonderfully fine drill master, and has all the other qualifications necessary to make an efficient and brave officer. He will now take the position of First Lieutenant, and Sergeant Glass will succeed to the Second Lieutenantcy. The Company will be now be officered by as able a trio as could be selected anywhere in the State, and will continue to more than meet the expectations of their many friends.

NEWARK SCORES ANOTHER.

The town of Newark has made one more score on the matrimonial match stick; the contracting parties being Mr. Henry L. E. Tripp, only son of Hon. N. W. Tripp, of Rock, and Miss Mary E. Inman, eldest daughter of Lyman Inman, Esq., of Newark. The time, the evening of January 29, 1879, and the place, the spacious residence of the father of the bride. Informal invitations were sent to the families of the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride, the intention being to make it only a family gathering. At an early hour about fifty were in attendance. At eight o'clock the bride and groom, attired a la mode, and attended only by the officiating clergyman, Rev. H. S. Jordan, Protestant Methodist, of Beloit, entered the large parlor where the family and guests had previously assembled. The vows were promptly spoken, the ring adjusted, and the marriage ceremony pronounced in the most pleasing manner. Congratulations followed, and there being no formal restraint, they were hearty and thoroughly enjoyable. Promptly at 9 o'clock supper was announced, and the large extension table, comfortably seating eighteen and loaded with the most tempting viands was soon surrounded, and repeated three times Delmonico might have furnished more style but no better food. Henry is a lucky fellow, for he can have it duplicated every day in the week if he desires. Music, social converse and general enjoyment filled up the time till half past eleven when the company were again invited to the parlor, where upon the center table were displayed some beautiful presents to the bride. These gifts were largely by families and included a set of solid silver table spoons, one dozen silver forks, one dozen silver knives, silver pickle castor and tongs, a large silver cake basket, a beautiful silver fruit basket, a large glass cake stand, one dozen damask napkins, and numerous smaller articles of silver and other materials. Rev. Mr. Jordan in a few choice words presented these tokens of regard on behalf of the givers, returning them thanks on the part of the happy couple, offered a short and appropriate prayer, invoked blessings for all, and the guests retired. The whole affair was entirely informal and could not have been more appropriate or more thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The National Complaint.

Dyspepsia is the national complaint. Almost every other man or woman you meet has it, and the result is that the number of pseudo-remedies for it is as numerous as Pharaoh's host. They are for the most part worthless. There is, however, a searching eradicator of this distressing and obdurate malady, one whose genuine merits long since raised it to a foremost place among the staple medicines of America. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, extirpates dyspepsia with greater certainty and promptitude than any known remedy, and is a most genial invigorant, appetizer and aid to secretion. There are not empty assertions, as thousands of our countrymen and women who have experienced its effects are aware, but are backed up by irrefragable proofs repeatedly laid before the public. The Bitters also promote a regular habit of body and give a healthful stimulus to the urinary organs.

It Stopped the Cough!

From the Hon. James Ross, Grand Lecturer L. O. G. T. Wia.

I take great pleasure in giving testimony to the efficacy of Hale's Cough Cordial in easily curing a persistent cough and catarrh. For a month while engaged nightly in public speaking, I had suffered with an annoying cough which stubbornly resisted the various cough remedies that I had taken. Through the advice of friends I fortunately gave Hale's Cough Cordial a trial, when my coughing ceased at once, and the following day it had done its work completely and I felt all right. The first dose went directly to the cold spot in my lungs, and in the midst of a general warmth and perspiration the stubborn cough seemed to dissolve. In gratitude and esteem, I am Yours truly, JAMES ROSS.

Mrs. Sarah A. Elliott.

Author of "Mrs. Elliott's Housewife," Oxford, N. C. writes: I was among the first that used the "London Hair Color Restorer" in this section, and recommended it to M. A. C. Santos, Norfolk, Va., as the most beautiful hair dresser and preserver I had ever seen. I was advised by an eminent physician to use it. Since doing so, it has proved so satisfactory in restoring and beautifying my hair, as well as strengthening my eyesight, that I have recommended it to the druggists here in Oxford, Raleigh, and a great many of my friends, and believe I have from what others say, caused it to have a wide and extended sale, and deservedly so, as it certainly is the most cleanly and effective hair restorer now before the American people. The "London Hair Color Restorer" can be obtained at all the leading druggists at 75 cents a bottle, or $1 for six bottles. jy30deodwly-4
